About the Course:

Body language is the invisible aspect of your communication that is used to disclose the actual inner emotions of the communicator when he speaks or communicates a message to others. The use of a correct body language can fortify the ideas and messages that you want to put across to others, and help you build trust and thereby prevent transmitting puzzling signals.

The skill to interpret and recognize body language can empower you to resolve unexpressed issues and negative feelings that the receptors may absorb due to the lack of proper non-verbal body language that they experienced during the phase of communication. Body-language knowledge as a trend is becoming an important part of individuals.
