Event brief (500 words with photo):  A motivational program on "Women's Empowerment in the Era of Social Distancing " was organized by VE-SIP cell in association with IWCC &amp; NDLI club on 24.01.2022 for staff & student members of JIT from 2.00 p.m. through online mode. The resource person was Ms. Alagu Lakshmi. S, Electrical Design Engineer, Siemens Technology &amp; Services, Chennai.  The program started with a welcome speech by Haripriya of II CSE. The speaker initiated her talk by mentioning that women need to be equipped with the proper knowledge and capacity to become empowered in these crucial times. Since social distancing is critical to stay safe, engagement can be promoted by increasing digital tools. She stressed that this can be leveraged for enhancing workplace support as well as to develop women workers' resilience. She emphasized that once the digital gender gap is reduced, there will be lesser inequalities and better chances of enhancing the skills and versatility of women employees. Finally she concluded her speech by enlightening the participants by saying that the primary aim of women's empowerment must be to make women self-reliant to have a healthy physical and mental state even during these crucial times when they are bound to stay at home. She stressed that this could help women keep moving ahead in their careers and have a healthy social life even during the pandemic. The event had a happy ending with the vote of thanks by Yehaasary of I AI.
Outcomes	Students were equipped with proper knowledge on women's empowerment and how to make women self-reliant to have a healthy physical and mental state even during these crucial times.
Feedback	Students understood on how to help women keep moving ahead in their careers and have a healthy social life even during the pandemic
Suggestions / Future actions	More such program is planned for the development of mental health of students & Staff members.
